BOSTON LAWYER ACCUSED OF LARCENY

CROWN PRINCE RETREATS

ALLIES DRIVE GERMAN ARMY AT LEFT AND CENTRE

GERMANS TAKE 2,500 PRISONERS.

By FREDERICK WERNER.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—By wireless to Sayville, L. I.—The following official statement was issued at headquarters today:

German-coat-of-arms.

"A decisive attack has been made by the Thirteenth and Fourth Corps and parts of other divisions south of Noyon. They suffered some loss.

"Beaumont (probably in the Ardennes region), has been stormed; 2,500 French prisoners have been captured.

"Attacks along the entire battle line have been easily repulsed. Number of guns and prisoners captured cannot be obtained yet.

"An invasion by Alpine riflemen over the Vosges into the Breisach valley has been repulsed."

It will be noticed, by comparison of the above official statements, that Berlin admits suffering losses near Noyon, where Paris claims progress. Noyon is about sixty-five miles northeast of Paris at a bend in the Oise River, where the river turns eastward into the department of the Aisne.

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—The left wing of the French and British armies is making progress and the army of the German Crown Prince is retreating, according to the official statement issued here at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The statement follows:

(OFFICIAL.)

French Coat of Arms.

"On our left wing on the right bank of the Oise in the direction of Noyon we have made progress. We hold all the heights on the right bank of the Aisne in the face of the enemy, which seems to have reinforced themselves by bringing up troops from Lorraine.

"At the centre the Germans have not moved from the deep trenches which they have constructed.

"On our right wing the army of the Crown Prince continues his retreating movement.

"Our advance into Lorraine is steady.

"Summing up, two armies, strongly entrenched, are making partial attacks on each other on the whole front without a decisive result on either one side or the other."

CENTRE TAKES OFFENSIVE.

The German centre in the battle of the Aisne in Eastern France has taken the offensive and is bombarding Rheims, accord-

TYLER TO OPPOSE PIRATES

WHAT MAY HAPPEN TODAY.

If the Braves win and the Giants lose, the Braves will lead the league by four games.

If the Braves win and the Giants also win, the Braves will hold their present margin of three games.

If the Braves lose and the Giants win, the Braves' lead will be cut down to two full games.

If the Braves lose and the Giants lose, the two fighting leaders will still be three games apart.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. — Fred Schumm, the well-known Wall Street betting man, is offering 10 to 6 on the Boston Braves to beat the Giants in the pennant race. The supporters of the New York team are asking 2 to 1. The odds stand 5 to 4 that the Athletics will win the world's series.

By NICK FLATLEY.

With their lead cut down by half a game, so that now they head the Giants by exactly three full games, the leading Braves open a three-game series with the sixth-place Pittsburgh Pirates today.

"Lefty" Tyler, rested since his victory over the Ciceros from the West—the Cardinals—on Tuesday, is in line to southpaw for the leaders. Manager Stallings has resorted again to the Big Three in regular rotation.

Accordingly, it's Tyler's turn to hurl. The reversion to the scheme that brought the Braves to the fore has warded off a defeat in the entire week's playing, so the chances are that the "Miracle Man" will stick to it.

While Hennery Wagner and his fellows are disporting at the Back Bay ball yard, the noble Giants will be having at it out with the Cubs at the Polo Grounds.

Boston has beaten the Pirates regularly all year and the same holds true, more or less, for the Giants with the Cubs. Latterly the Pirates have been showing some of the class that was theirs earlier in the season. Also the Cubs have been bowling along merrily.

When both Braves and Giants were on the road in the last invasion of the West by the East, both the O'Days and the Pittsburghers were going full tilt. But the arrival of the invaders rang out the new and back the old.

So it looks like an even chance for

Wilson to Vote Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—President Wilson next Tuesday will vote at Princeton for Representative Allen Walsh in the Democratic party.

Runs Away frrm High School, Sees Exeter, Returns

Howard Pierce, fourteen, of Boston, thinks better of education than he did a week ago. He entered the High School of Commerce this year. But he didn't like it and ran away to Exeter, N. H. There he saw the fine buildings of Exeter N. H. There he saw the fine buildings of Exeter Academy and the group of boys going to and from their classes.

"Are there any Boston boys here?" he asked.

"Lots of them," the professors said. "They work hard as grown men to earn their way through, in many cases."

"Me for it," said Howard, and Chief of Police Samuel Davis paid his fare back to Boston. Howard is determined to have an education now.

Malden Police Officer's Wife Hangs Herself

Mrs. Alice J. Gray, wife of Sergeant Ulah H. Gray of the Malden police department, committed suicide today by hanging in the basement of her home, No. 2 Fellsway, Malden.

The body was discovered by Sergeant Gray after he missed his wife from her room. Mrs. Gray had been ill for eighteen months. She had been treated at the Malden Hospital and elsewhere.

Yesterday she appeared in good spirits and together with her husband attended the Reading fair. She leaves two children, John A. and Marion W. Gray. She was a native of Melrose and was about forty-five years old. The Grays have lived in Malden for twenty years. Medical Examiner McGaffery of Somerville was notified.

Plan Monument in Honor of Sullivan

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—While thousands of school boys stood with bowed heads as the funeral cortege passed, the body of James E. Sullivan, world leader in amateur sport, was taken from his home today to St. Aloysius Church where funeral services were held. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery.

At a meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of which Sullivan was secretary, steps will be taken tonight to erect a monument to the athlete's friend.

Judge Parker's Mother Is Dead

DERBY, Ct., Sept. 19.—Mrs. John Brookes Parker, mother of Judge Alton B. Parker of New York, died early today at Pond Point, the Summer home of her daughter, Mrs. James A. Miles, near here. Mrs. Parker was eighty-nine, and had been ailing for some time. She was born at Portland, N. Y., and is survived by two sons, Judge Alton B. Parker and Fred Parker, a hospital commissioner of New York and her daughter.

Liner Onondaga Is Battered by Gale

The Clyde liner Onondaga came in today from Jacksonville, Fla., badly damaged by a gale off Hatteras. It took her twenty-eight hours to make 125 miles during the gale. Seas smashed two heavy oak doors and flooded the engine room at one time. Captain Googins said two days ago he passed the schooner Republic of Thomaston, Me., which had ridden out the gale, short of supplies, and gave them coffee and potatoes.

JOHN A. E. MORONEY ARRESTED

John A. E. Moroney, a well-known Boston lawyer, was arraigned today before Judge Sullivan in the Municipal Court charged with the larceny of $1,500 from Walter J. Sugden on August 28. Moroney pleaded not guilty and the case was continued for a hearing on September 29. He was represented by Attorney Clarence W. Rowley.

Bail was fixed at $2,500. Moroney furnished surety when arrested last night and the same bonds gave him his liberty today. The amount of bail was fixed after the arrest by Assistant District Attorney Daniel V. McIsaac.

Mr. Moroney is well known in legal and political circles. He was counsel for James Mantir, who, with Peter Delorey, was convicted of the murder of Annie Mullins in Arlington several years ago. Mantir, whom Moroney represented, is serving a life term.

Supreme Court Denies Hearing to Nahant Club

Judge Hammond of the Supreme Court ruled today that the Nahant Selectmen were not obliged to grant a hearing before revoking the liquor license of the Shore Club of that town. The case now goes to the full bench on appeal.

Judge Hammond dismissed the club's petition that the Selectmen be compelled to certify the records of their action. The Shore Club received a license May 1 for $500. On August 12 President James L. Cowles of the club, for some reason not brought out, took the license from the clubhouse to the Selectmen. September 2 the club asked for it. The Selectmen refused, and on September 5 revoked the license. The club said this was without legal right, as no complaint had been made. The Selectmen declare, however, that the club was injurious to the welfare, good order and morality of the town.

Coldwell in Jail Runs for Office

MILFORD, Sept. 19. — Although serving a year's sentence for assault with intent to kill, Joseph M. Coldwell, leader of the strikers at the Draper Company's plant eighteen months ago, is a candidate for State treasurer on the Socialist ticket at the primaries.

'SIR' JAMES TELLS ALL AT HEARING

"Sir" James Carlton, of the United States Oxygen Company, held by the Immigration Authorities, today appeared before Inspector Daniel J. Leonard of the United States Immigration Service and told the story of his life.

Sir James has heretofore refused to talk. The hearing today was secret. But it is understood that he told many details, including a former marriage. He said this first wife is dead.

After the hearing Sir James promised to cable to England for documentary proofs of his story. Among other documents, he is to cable for records of the Carlton baronetcy from the College of Heralds. He will perhaps also ask for records from Scotland to prove his marriage, which is in some dispute.

No decision will be made in the case till the records are received, but it is freely predicted that Carlton will eventually be released.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Sept. 19.—According to reports received here Count Anton Sigray, a lieutenant of the Hungarian hussars, has been captured by the Russians and taken to Odessa. The count is a brother of Mrs. James W. Gerard, wife of the United States Ambassador to Germany.

RHEIMS BOMBARDED AS GERMANS ADVANCE

The losses are terrific. Unofficial French estimates place the total of killed, wounded and missing along the Aisne at 150,000 for both sides. Berlin issued today an official statement of more than 50,000 lost, but probably not including the present engagement.

Russian and Austrian armies are lined up in northern Galicia for a decisive struggle and Berlin says that Von Hinderberg is invading Russian Poland from the Prussian border.

LOCKED IN DEATH GRIP.

On the Rheims bombardment the AMERICAN'S Paris correspondent wires:

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Despite heavy rains which are falling over the great French battlefield where the Germans and allies are locked in a grip of death, the invaders have taken the offensive on the centre in order to relieve the pressure of the British against General Von Kluck's army on their right. Unofficially but apparently reliable reports received here today say that the Germans have taken up a position near the Suippe River, east by northeast from Rheims, and are bombarding the city.

Several sections of Rheims are reported to have been set on fire from bursting shells, which were directed against the French troops in that city.

The government has not yet issued any official figures on the losses in the great battle of which this is the seventh day, but unofficial estimates place the German loss at 100,000 men and the allies at half that number, a total of 150,000 in killed, wounded and missing.

Russia followed with the shortest official statement since war began, thus:

PETROGRAD, Sept. 19.—Only a four-word statement was issued at the War Office today. It was: "Military operations continue successfully."

REPORT GERMANS SURROUNDED.

The London Telegraph prints a dispatch from Soissons that a German force has been surrounded at Chateau Thierry, and a bloody battle is shaping. This is significant, as Chateau Thierry is thirty-five miles southwest of Rheims and indicates a German advance farther than Paris admits.

Attention is called to important developments in the following dispatch:

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Two important developments of the past twenty-four hours, almost overlooked, may have important bearing on that very conflict.

1. The government press bureau announces that on September 16 a patrol of five German Uhlans was encountered near Doullons, France, by an armored motor car force of the Royal Naval Fying Corps under Commander Samson. Four of the Germans were killed, and the fifth was captured after being wounded.

(Doullons is twenty miles north of Amiens and is only about thirty miles from the coast of the English Channel.)

2. The London Times correspondent at Cologne announces the capture of Maubeuge by the Germans, which place, he says, fell on September 7.

The presence of British troops at Doullons indicates that England has been able to put a fresh force in the field in northern France. Heretofore official mention of the British forces has placed them in a position of opposing the German front.

The Times correspondent's confirmation of the fall of Maubeuge, which was officially announced by the German government in Berlin on September 9, is important, as showing that the Germans have demolished a powerful obstacle which would have menaced them. The capture of Maubeuge gives free access to the German line of communication through Thion, Charleroi and Namur.

RIOTS REPORTED IN VIENNA

ROME, Sept. 19.—The Giornale Italia says: "It is reported at Innsbruck that serious rioting occurred in Vienna on Wednesday and Thursday. The windows of the war and foreign offices were stoned. There were riots also at Innsbruck. The crowd shouted, 'Long live Germany!'"

PERSONALITIES IN THE GREAT WAR

THE DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND and her Red Cross workers are en route for England from The Hague. The party had an adventurous experience during the bombardment of Namur.

MAJOR E. J. STIVERS, U. S. A., retired, aged eighty, his niece and a pet bird, have been brought to Paris from the Marne region.

..GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS, commander-in-chief of the Russian army, has issued a proclamation to Austria-Hungary promising liberty and a return of their national ideas.

MOTHER ADRIENNE, head of the Dames du Sacre Coeur, has been killed on the battlefield.

..CARDINALS O'CONNELL and Gibbons have left the Azores on the Canopic, which also brings many war refugees.

..FORMER UNITED STATES SENATOR CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, just returned, was cheered in France because his "sideboards" made people think he was English.

THE PRINCE OF WALES, who wanted to go to the front, was barred by Lord Kitchener.

P. B. MAGRANE of Lynn, treasurer of the Magrane-Houston Company of Boston, and Mrs. Magrane have returned from Europe.

CAPTAIN VON MEDEL, personal aide of the German Crown Prince, has been killed.

READ THIS SYNOPSIS FIRST.

Marta Galland and her mother live on the frontier between the country of the Browns, their own, and the country of the Grays. By their house winds a road through the pass in the range. To hold the pass is to hold the range.

Their house was built by the first Galland on the land that his king had given him for one of the most brilliant feats of arms in the history of the pass. Beyond the house rises the ruins of a castle centuries old, its tower still intact.

Among the friends of the Gallands, two are prominent. One is Lanstron, the young chief of intelligence on the Brown general staff, who first met Marta ten years before as the result of an aeroplane accident. The other is Westerling, vice-chief of staff of the Grays and actual chief in all but name, whose high rank Marta had predicted ten years before.

Marta, who has travelled round the world, is visiting the Gray capital, and Westerling calls upon her. She tells him that for nations to fight is as foolish as for neighbors to quarrel, and declares herself at war with all frontiers.

She tells him that she is teaching a class of children at La Tir, near her home, to abhor war, and is making them take an oath that when they grow up they will never cross a frontier to kill their fellow men. She urges him to prevent a war between his country and her's, for she declares, "you will not win!"

Lanstron's visit to Marta are his holidays. At the tightening of the crisis between the Browns and the Grays, he calls one day and finds the ladies absent. Strolling about the grounds he comes upon an old friend, disguised as a deaf gardener.

Marta returns and tells Lanstron that she ought not to have shaken hands with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

HE had known her in reproach, in anger, in laughing mockery, in militant seriousness, but never before like this. The pain and indignation in her eyes came not from the sheer hurt of a wound, but from the hurt of its source. It was as if he had learned by the signal of its loss that he had a deeper hold on her than he had realized.

"Yes, I have a bone to pick with you," she said, recovering a grim sort of fellowship. "A big bone! If you're half a friend you'll give me the very marrow of it."

"I am ready!" he answered more pathetically than philosophically.

"There's not time now; after luncheon, when mother is taking her nap," she concluded as they came to the last step and saw Mrs. Galland on the veranda.

After luncheon Mrs. Galland kept battling with her nods until nature was victorious and she fell fast asleep. Marta, grown restless with impatience, suggested to Lanstron that they stroll in the garden, and they took the path past the house toward the castle tower, stopping in an arbor with high hedges on either side around a statue of Mercury.

"Now!" exclaimed Marta narrowly. "It was you, Lanny, who recommended Feller to us as a gardener, competent though deaf! I have proved him to be a man of most sensitive hearing. I didn't let him know that he was discovered. You brought him here—you, Lanny, you are the one to explain."

"True, he is not deaf!" Lanstron replied.

"He is a spy?" she asked.

"Yes, a spy. You can put things in a bright light, Marta!" He found words coming with difficulty in face of the pain and disillusion of her set look.

"Using some man as a pawn; setting him as a spy in the garden where you have been the welcome friend!" she exclaimed. "A spy on what—on my mother, on Minna, on me, on the flowers, as a part of this monstrous game of trickery and lies that you are playing?"

AS MORTALLY HURT

There was no trace of anger in her tone. It was that of one mortally hurt. Anger would have been easier to bear than the measuring, penetrating wonder that found him guilty of such a horrible part. Those eyes would have confused Partow himself with the steady, welling intensity of their gaze. She did not see how his left hand was twitching and how he stilled its movement by pressing it against the bench.

"You will take Feller with you when you go!" she said, rising."

Lanstron dropped his head in a kind of shaking throb of his whole body and raised a face white with appeal.

"Marta!" He was speaking to a profile, very sensitive and yet like ivory. "I've no excuse for such an abuse of hospitality except the obsession of a loathsome work that some man must do and I was set to do. My God, Marta! I cease to be natural and human. I am a machine. I keep thinking, what if war comes and some error of mine let the enemy know where to strike the blow of victory; or if there were information I might have gained and failed to gain that would have given us the victory—if, because I had not done by part, thousands of lives of our soldiers were sacrificed needlessly!"

At that she turned on him quickly, her face softening.

"You do think of that—the lives?"

"Yes, why shouldn't I?"

"Of those on your side!" she exclaimed, turning away.

"Yes, of those first," he replied. "And, Marta, I did not tell you why Feller was here because he did not want me to."

CHAPTER VI.

A Crisis Within a Crisis

FOLLOWING the path to the tower leisurely, they had reached the tower. Feller's door was open. Marta looked into the room, finding in the neat arrangement of its furniture a new significance. He was absent, for it was the dinner hour.

"On my recommendation you took him," Lanstrom said.

"Yes, on yours, Lanny, on a friend's! You"—she put a cold emphasis on the word—"you wanted him here for your plans! And why? You haven't answered that yet. What purpose of the war game does he serve in our garden?"

His look pleaded for patience, while he tried to smile, which was rather difficult in face of her attitude.

"Not altogether in the garden; partly in the tower," he replied. "You are to be in the whole secret and in such a way as to make my temptation clear, I hope. First, I think you ought to see the setting. Let us go in."

Impelled by a curiosity that Lanstron's manner accentuated, she entered the room. Apparently Lanstron was familiar with the premises. Passing through the sitting room into the room adjoining, where Feller stored his tools, he opened a door that gave on to the circular stone steps landing down into the dungeon tunnel.

"I think we had better have a light," he said, and when he had fetched one from the bed chamber he descended the steps, asking her to follow.

THE SECRET IN THE WALL

They were in a passage six feet in height and about three feet broad, which seemed to lead on indefinitely into clammy darkness. The dewey walls sparkled in fantastic and ghostly iridescence under the rays from the lantern. The dark air lay moist against their faces.

"This is far enough." He paused and raised the lantern. With its light full in her face, she blinked. "There, at the height of your chin!"

She noted a metal button painted gray, set at the side of one of the stones of the wall, which looked unreal. She struck the stone with her knuckles and it gave out the sound of hollow wood, which was followed, as an echo, by a little laugh from Lanstron. Pressing the button, a panel door flew open, revealing a telephone mouthpiece and receiver set in the recess.

"Like a detective play!" were the first words that sprang to her lips. "Well?" As she faced around her eyes glittered in the lantern rays. "Well, have you any other little tricks to show me? Are you a sleight-of-hand artist, too, Lanny? Are you going to take a machine gun out of your hat?"

"That is the whole bag," he answered. "I thought you'd rather see it than have it described to you."

"Having seen it, let us go!" she said, in a manner that implied further reckoning to come.

G.O.P. FIGHT ON JOHN MITCHELL BEGINS EARLY

Friends of Congressman John J. Mitchell of the Thirteenth District are urged to go to the polls in their full strength next Tuesday for the purpose of registering rebuke to the methods with which the Republican machine has begun the fight on him.

There is no doubt anywhere that Congressman Mitchell's splendid service at Washington will be endorsed by the Democrats of the district. While somebody has seen to it that there is another name on the primary ballot, with the designation "Democratic" over the name, Congressman Mitchell will come out of this primary "contest" a winner by at least 10 to 1.

Men who know Motchell, his clean life, his great record in House and Senate on Beacon Hill and his devotion to the people as expressed by his work at Washington, say the figures should be 25 to 1. Some of them go so far as to say that Mr. Mitchell's "opponent" should have one vote and no more.

It is the purpose of somebody or other to stir up such Democratic disaffection as they hope exists in the district to the end that there may be feeling enough to carry over to election day.

Mitchell won a Republican district for the Democratic party following the promotion of John W. Weeks to the Senatorship. The district is rich and running over with Republicans of great wealth who look upon Mr. Mitchell's success as a party catastrophe. There is nothing some of them would not do to hurt Mr. Mitchell in the primaries to the end that he may be defeated on election day.

The opposition to Congressman Mitchell is a humbug and a joke. It will not be taken seriously in Ward 25, Boston. It ought not to be taken seriously in the smallest and remotest villages in the district.

It is the duty of every Democrat in the Thirteenth to go to the polls for Mitchell on Tuesday even at some sacrifice to himself.

Mitchell's re-election will be made certain by a rousing Mitchell vote on Tuesday.

Rehearing on Rate Advance Set for Oct. 19

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted the petition of the eastern railroads for a rehearing of the 5 per cent. advance rate case and set October 19 as the date for the rehearing.

The commission ruled that the hearing be limited "to presentation of facts disclosed and occurences, originating subsequently to the date upon which the records previously made in these cases were disclosed."

This provision practically limits the new hearing of the case to conditions brought about by the European war.

Pending the rehearing the provisions of the decision handed down in this case recently are to remain in effect.

JOHN MITCHELL FOR AMERICAN'S PLAN FOR PEACE

Endorsements by the score of the world peace plan inaugurated by Mr. Hearst's newspapers, and of Mr. Hearst's proposal to send a Peace Commission to Europe, come daily to the AMERICAN.

The peace movement that began in Boston with the magnificent peace mass meeting on Boston Common last Sunday is daily gathering strength.

The list of those who have endorsed the movement begins with the name of Vice-President Marshall and includes the names of twenty Governors, as many senators, a hundred representatives, and leaders in thought throughout the country.

In Massachusetts, Governor Walsh, Mayor Curley, former Governor John D. Long, Bishop Babcock, Samuel J. Elder—these are but a few of those supporting the movement.

In addition to the endorsements by five former Cabinet officers of the United States—ex-Secretary of State William R. Day, ex-Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage, ex-Secretary of War Jacob M. Dickinson, ex-Secretary of the Navy John D. Long, and ex-Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith—the following telegram was received from George von Lengerke Meyer, formerly Secretary of the Navy in the Cabinet of President Taft, Postmaster-General in the Cabinet of President Roosevelt, and before that American Ambassador to Italy and to Russia:

MEYER FAVORS PLAN.

Editor of the AMERICAN:

> The peace movement which Mr. Hearst's newspapers are instigating appeals to the sympathy of the United States. Americans are appalled by the relentless destruction of life and property and dismayed that such a needless war conflagration could be brought about by any ruler or rulers. America will welcome the psychological movement which will permit of an armistice and enable peace overtures to be considered by the contestants.
> GEORGE VON L. MEYER.

John Mitchell, the redoubtable labor leader, has placed himself side by side with Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and given indorsement of the national American peace plan inaugurated by Mr. Hearst:

> Let all lovers of peace pray that this movement shall sweep the world until war is a matter of the past. Let us stop not only this war, but all wars of the future.

That goes well with President Gompers' words:

> The present European war is condemnable from every viewpoint. I will gladly go to any length and associate myself with any movement to bring to an end the struggle and make for international peace and the democratization of the institutions of the world.

WOMEN PRAY U. S. TROOPS BE KEPT IN MEXICO

VERA CRUZ, Mex., Sept. 19.—Panic continues here regarding the exodus of the American forces, despite the fact that from indications today this will be delayed some weeks.

The arrival of General Aguilar from Soledad is considered by Mexicans and Americans as the result of a misinterpretation of orders, since it is known here that Constitutionalists would not be allowed to enter here armed until after the withdrawal of the American troops.

More than 200 women in the highest social circles, gathered in the cathedral here and prayed that the American troops might not be withdraw from Vera Cruz.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The United States has sent a formal note to Great Britain inquiring if the interview attributed to Sir Lionel Carden, British minister to Mexico, criticising President Wilson for withdrawing American troops from Vera Cruz, was accurate in any part.

Why Two Hods?

Crawford Ranges

have an Ash Hod with a Coal Hod beside it (patented). The Ash Hod is deep and catches all of the ashes. It is easy to remove and carry and doesn't spill. Both hods free. The old, clumsy ash pan is hard to remove and strews ashes over floor and stairs.

The wonderful "Single Damper" (patented) makes perfect control of fire and oven. Better than two dampers. Have you seen it?

Gas ovens if desired; end (single) or elevated (double).

SLAIN WOMAN FAILED TO TELL OF THREATS

Mrs. Laura A. Guild, who was shot to death by Bertram G. Lawton, who then killed himself, in Clifton, paid with her life, it developed today, for not reporting to the police threats Lawton had been making for two weeks. A week ago, Mrs. Guild was cut on the hand in a battle to save herself from Lawton, who rushed at her with a knife. The shooting makes orphans of girls of four and two.

Lawton, it is declared, was made insanely jealous by learning Mrs. Guild planned to return to her husband, Charles E. Guild. The figures in the double tragedy had a violent quarrel on Thursday in Somerville, when Lawton learned Mrs. Guild had been to a theatre with her husband, from whom she had been separated several months.

Lawton left three notes. One was addressed "To the Chief of Police" and read: "Will you kindly see that Ernest Converse gets the gun back? borrowed it of him, saying I was to kill a dog. The gun is his."

A note not addressed said: "Call up M. W. Winn of Little Harbor, N. H. My wife, Flora, is there." A third note is addressed to "Edith and Roy."

WIND PREVENTS ANDREW'S AIR CAMPAIGNING

A brisk and fractious wind interfered today with A. Piatt Andrew's plan to campaign over the Sixth Congressional District by aeroplane. Mr. Andrew was at Marblehead at 7:30, ready, and he and Clifford Webster got aboard a Burgess-Wright biplane which was tested yesterday and made ready for the flight and pushed out into the water.

When Webster went to the rear end on the pontoons to crank the machine the wind caught the planes and started to tip the machine backward. Andrew jumped to the forward end, Webster with him, and they righted the machine with some difficulty.

The engine started, and they tried to rise, but the wind kicked up such a spray that it was impossible, and the flight was abandoned for a time. Mr. Andrew went by auto to Swampscott, where he was to meet a crowd. He expected to talk to 10,000 at Haverhill.

He is armed with a London newspaper, listing Americans helping refugees. The name of Congressman Gardner, against whom Andrew is campaigning, does not appear in the list.

Roosevelt Sounds Progressive Slogan

WICHITA, Kas., Sept. 19.—Former President Roosevelt sounded a keynote of the Progressive campaign here today by advocating a program that shall consider the interests of business and labor without divorcing them; creation of governmental agencies to deal with modern commerce and manufacture; social legislation and reform of political machinery.

He scored the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad for the conditions revealed by recent investigations.

KELIHER'S OWN WARD 9 AGAINST BOLTER NOW

John A. Keliher, the man who bolted the Democratic primaries four years ago and ran as an independent against Congressman Murray, will not have the support next Tuesday of the Donovan-Attridge-Callahan organization in Ward 9.

Keliher calls Ward 9 his "own" ward. It isn't. He doesn't live in the ward. He doesn't live in the Congressional district, it is said.

City Councillor Attridge and former Representative Timothy F. Callahan addressed a big meeting of Democrats last night in the old Franklin Schoolhouse in Washington street.

The meeting was called primarily in the interest of Representatives Sheehan and Donoghue, candidates for renomination.

Ruby Cohen of Ward 9, said to be a Keliher supporter, threw a monkey-wrench into the machinery and turned the gathering into an anti-Keliher demonstration.

Former Representative Callahan, a young attorney and one of the most eloquent public speakers in Boston, was bringing his speech for Sheehan and Donoghue to a close when a young man, said to be Cohen, called out:

"Who are you for for Congress?"

CHEER FOR TAGUE.

"If you are a friend of Kelliher," Mr. Callahan replied hotly, "you have done him more harm than good by bringing that question into this meeting. I have tried to avoid taking a public stand on the question of the Congressional nomination. We have all tried to avoid it here, but I want to say that I am not afraid of John Kelliher.

"You cannot make me say tonight whom I am with for Congress, but I will tell you that it will NOT BE JOHN A. KELIHER, who trampled upon, harrassed and helped to defeat me when I stood as Ward 9's candidate for the Senate. If Kelliher wants to force our hand we are prepared to make it impossible for him to carry this ward, which Keliher calls his own. I am for the best man."

"And the best man," yelled somebody in the rear of the hall, "is Peter F. Tague!"

Whereat there was prolonged cheering.

Councillor Attridge sprang to the front of the stage.

"Mr. Callahan's stand on this question, I want to say," declared Attridge, "is the same as my own."

Representative Tague addressed several meetings in East Boston last night, characterizing the anti-saloon attack of Keliher as the gutter fighting tactics of a statesman who has had his day and knows the people want no more of him.

Mr. Tague was heard at the Blackington School, the Iona Social Club, the Fitton Athletic Club, the Lamson Social Club, the Murray Park Social Club and at Armory Hall. In Ward 1 he addressed a big meeting in Central square.

"KELIHER IS BEATEN."

"I am not going to spend much time answering the slanders of John A. Keliher," said Mr. Tague, "for I want to talk to you about Keliher's line-up with the Republican machine at Washington, his vote against the Pure Food Bill—a crime against every man, woman and child in the district—his vote against giving the Interstate Commerce Commission the larger powers recommended by the President, and other acts of Keliher in office which showed him to be anything and everything except a Democrat. How he bolted these very primaries of four years ago is known to all of you.

"But Mr. Keliher is telling intelligent men that I hold that $1.65 a day is enough for the laborer, and I deem it proper to briefly call attention to the fact that I supported the bill in the Legislature establishing the pay of laborers in the employ of the Commonwealth at $2.50 a day.

"That ought to be enough, but in order to clinch this part of the controversy and hold it fast I shall take great pleasure in reading the endorsement of my State House votes by upwards of forty labor organizations.

"Keliher is tonight a beaten man. At the last hour he has called upon the saloons to save him. He has even had to have the editorial support of the Shoe Machinery Trust, through one of its kept newspapers. The gentleman who basks in Henry Cabot Lodge's favor at Washington and can induce the Back Bay newspaper to say nice things about him wants the liquor dealers and bartenders to jump in and save him because I urged young men to practice temperance.

"I leave it to the voters of this district to properly rebuke such tactics. Four years ago you retired John A. Keliher to private life because he had been untrue to his Democratic trust at Washington.

"He appealed from that decision of yours in the primaries by carrying arms against your Democratic nominee on Election Day.

"Again you rebuked him.

"Any other man than John A. Kelliher would have understood that the Democrats of the Tenth Congress District were done with him.

"He is back again and it is up to the Democrats of the district to drive the lesson home with the hammers of 10,000 votes. I am confident that you are going to do it."

"Mr. Tague's last speech of the night was before the Jefferson Club in Ward 6. He called the attention of the Fitzgerald organization to the fact that Mayor Curley had deprived him of the use of the wardroom. The Jefferson Club has endorsed the Tague candidacy. Mr. Tague's reception there was the most enthusiastic of a night of red fire.

Boston Tennis Star After Ohio Title

TIMILTY FEARS LAST DAY SHIFT TO DR. HANLEY

Announcement of the fact that Mayor Curley and Senator "Diamond Jim" Timilty are again wrapped up in the same political bed has had the effect, it was said today, of uniting all the anti-Curley anti-Timilty elements in the Seventh Senatorial District on Dr. James F. Hanley for Senator.

Dr. Hanley is a son of the late Colonel P. D. Hanley, a Civil War hero, whose bravery and virtues are not forgotten by Bostonians. The physician inherited considerable of his lamented father's courage. Last year he came within sixty votes of beating "Diamond Jim" for a seat in the Senate.

This year there are six candidates for the Senate, including Timilty. Two of them, Representative P. Joseph McManus and Representative James J. Griffin, have excellent records as legislators. It is the consensus of opinion in the district, however, that such a splitting of the anti-Timilty vote can have but one result, of sending the "Boss of Ward 18" back to the Senate.

The district is made up of Wards 18, 19 and 22. Last year, Dr. Hanley, a man of thirty-one, carried two of the three wards. Because of the wonderful strength he then displayed, the followers of the young physician maintain that he was this year's logical candidate in opposition to Timilty. If the Doctor retains any large portion of his vote of last year, he will be nominated high and dry.

Roxbury is not deeply impressed by the spectacular reunion of Curley and Timilty in the hour of Timilty's distress. The district needs more time to forget the Mayor's treatment of scrubwomen and other city employes.

They are asking out there if the heunion means that Timilty will desert Lomasney, and stand with Curley against a larger City Council, representing all parts of the city, and whether James C. hopes to make a Goo Goo out of James T.

Timilty can be and will be beaten on Tuesday, Democratic leaders declare, if the anti-Timilty anti-Curley should should finally concentrate on Dr. James F. Hanley.

Pumpelly Displaced As Yale Full Back

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 19.—Hal Pumpelly has been displaced as Yale fullback, and Harry Legore, the sensational freshman drop-kicker of last season, was given his berth. The pair parted with honors about even in a punting duel, but Pumpelly scored a beautiful goal from drop-kick for the scrubs, while Legore heaved a forward pass to Higginbotham, varsity end rush, for the only touchdown of the day, giving the Varsity the victory, 5 to 3. Knowles and Ainsworth replaced Bentley and MacLeish as Varsity halfback and Alex Wilson resumed quarterback for the regulars.

LUSTIG HOPES TO GAIN FAME IN THE RING

By JACK CONWAY.

JOHNNY "YOUNG" LUSTIG is an ambitious young boxer. He is rated as one of the best lightweight performers in New York, but just now he is anxious to prove that there is not a 133-135-pound glove wielder in this section of the country who is able to defeat him.

Lustig, although a New York boy, has a big following throughout New England. He made his first appearance in these parts at the University Club in Cambridge. He was pitted against Terry Brooks of this city and honors were even at the end of ten hard rounds of fighting.

The Gotham lad was later signed to clash with Matty Baldwin at Manchester, N. H. It was believed that the New Yorker would be easy for the Charlestown veteran. Close followers of the glove game, however, realized that Lustig had a chance of winning, as they remembered the rugged battle he gave Johnny Dundee of New York.

Baldwin, however, entered the ring a heavy favorite. Lustig started to fight at a merry clip in the very first frame and more than held his own with Baldwin. He was given a draw by the referee, and the verdict proved a very popular one.

Lustig's last battle was in this city against Terry Brooks, and he breezed in a winner. The bout was a fast one, but the Gotham youth was too speedy and clever for the hard hitting Brooks.

EDDIE MURPHY, the skilful South Boston boxer, will be Lustig's next opponent in a twelve-round tussle, which will be held at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. Murphy has always given a fine account of himself in his contests in this city, but he will have to be at his very best if he is to hold Lustig at bay. Johnny is a fine boxer, but does not rely entirely upon footwork, as do most clever mitt men. He avoids many of his opponent's blows by merely moving his head or body a few inches. This is the method which was employed by Abe Attell when he was sweeping all before him.

If Lustig wins from Murphy he will be in a position to demand a bout with Matty Baldwin or Gilbert Gallant. He will have proved that he is able to dispose of the clever boxers just as easily as he beats the sluggers.

FRED YELLE, the Taunton lightweight, will not lack backers if he is able to secure a title battle with Matty Baldwin. Yelle is much younger than the Charlestown boxer and his fine work within the hemp ropes during the past few years entitles him to recognition from the best of the local lightweights. Yelle is a strong, rugged young fellow and is able to punch hard with each hand. He is also a good boxer, and it will take a star performer to defeat him. When he met Baldwin in Augusta, Me., early this year, he proved a little bit too fast for the Bunker Hill favorite, and had a comfortable margin in his favor when the skirmish ended. It is not expected that Baldwin will avoid a meeting with Yelle provided one of the New England clubs offers the proper inducements, as Matty is not the kind of boxer who dodges a battle with a legitimate challenger.

BARNEY SNYDER, the clever Roxbury bantamweight, would like to get another whirl with Gardner Brooks of Lowell. These two boys met at the Atlas A. A. last Tuesday night and Referee Flemming awarded the decision to Brooks. Snyder contends that he was entitled to at least a draw, as he believes that he had the best of the going. The writer witnessed the bout, and in my opinion a draw would have been the proper decision. Snyder was the aggressor in the majority of the rounds and landed many telling blows. Brooks did his best work at long range, when he scored with snappy left hand punches.

THE dear old wrestlers are having their troubles these days. It was reported a few days ago that Stanislaus Zbyszko was a prisoner of war in Germany. There is now a cruel rumor that Franz Gerhardt is also passing away his time within the gray walls of one of the Kaiser's stout houses. Gerhardt appeared in a number of engagements in this city and was always advertised as the "German Oak." When war was declared, so the story goes, Gerhardt refused to shoulder a musket and go to the front to fight the battles of the Fatherland. It is said that he was then cast into prison and ordered to be shot, but that this sentence was later lifted and he is confined merely as a prisoner of war. Perhaps Gerhardt believes it is a whole lot better to be eating a prison diet than to be flirting with bullets from the ranks of the allies.

MANDOT EASY WINNER OVER AD WOLGAST

By SAM P. HALL, JR.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 19.—Joe Mandot made folks sit up and blink their eyes in astonishment. The slender New Orleans champion handed Ad Wolgast, once the terror of the division, an artistic cuffing in the 10-round windup at the Dreamland arena.

Mandot surprised the writer by his sensational showing. He had everything he needed, both on attack and defence, and then some. He was here, there and everywhere and had Wolgast completely baffled all the way.

Mandot cut Ad's face up with left hooks and right uppercuts, and dealt him solid thumpings on the body. The Cadillac veteran was weary and disgusted when it was all over.

Wolgast carried something of a paunch and was decidedly slow. He fought like a man with only a one-punch chance to win.

It was a slashing fight and well worth watching.

Sullivan, who had acted as the secretary of the American Olympic Committee since its organization.

THREE SCHOOL BATTLES TODAY ON GRIDIRON

Three school football games are on the schedule for this afternoon, and both should be good contests. Waltham plays the Worcester High team the elevens of Wellesley High and Quincy High play their first games at Quincy, while Milford and Hopedale clash at Milford.

Waltham played its first game of the season last Saturday and won an easy victory, but several weaknesses were visible, and in the game today Coach Harry Dame is confident that his team will show great improvement.

The line was weak on the defence last week, but with several changes it is expected that this fault has been overcome.

Waltham has a wonderful quartet of backfield men. Healey at quarter, Richardson at full and Millen and Bacon at the halfback positions are classy players.

Wellesley High will go into the game today minus the services of Captain Stover in the backfield. Quincy has a strong team this season and hopes to give Wellesley a trimming. The Quincy line will average 160 pounds, with the backfield men averaging a few pounds lighter.

Johnson Tells Feds to Play St. Paul Team

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Unless other members of the National Commission can talk President Johnson of the American League into changing his views, the Federal League will not have a hand in a Fall series to determine the world's championship.

President James A. Gilmore of the independents asked permission for the pennant winning club of the third league to meet the flag winners of the American and National.

"The request will not be considered," said Johnson. "The whole thing is a joke. If they want to play a post season series why don't they play the St. Paul Club?"

VAN LOAN SAYS HIS CONDITION HAS IMPROVED

Charles E. Van Loan, the famous short story writer, who was formerly on the staff of this newspaper, is rapidly recovering from the injuries he received in a recent automobile accident in California. Van Loan is blessed with an iron nerve, and, propped up in bed by pillows, he is dictating a new story to his secretary.

Van Loan has written to friends in this city that he is moved to humor while telling about his own condition. We quote a paragraph from one of the author's letters:

> This left arm makes "no better" fast. Eight weeks ago today and it is not yet set—not yet operated on. One bone has joined of itself, the other must be sawed off and wired. The doctors have a thousand reasons why they should not operate just yet, and because a sucker who believes in doctors, I accept what they say, but the waiting is dammed tough. Otherwise, I am bully. The jaw is doing well and the lump has gone down so much that you could not tell which side was broken. The only rotten feature is that the break loosened the teeth on each side and they don't tighten up again. Oh, well, I can chew on the other side. And I do. The pains in the head are leaving slowly, and if I had only two arms now I would say that I was absolutely as good as new.

Report Chance Ready to Rejoin the Cubs

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—It is rumored that Frank Chance is scheduled to lead the Chicago Cubs before long. After Chance resigned as manager of the Highlanders he said that he would leave for his home in California in a day or two and would make the trip by auto.

Chance is still in the city, however, and it was said that Charles P. Taft, owner of the Cubs, will be here in a day or two. If arrangements can be made with O'Day to resign as leader of the Cubs, Chance will take command of his old team.

New Billiard Record.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 19.—Pierre Maupome of St. Louis set a new world's record when he made a high run of 18 at three-cushion billiards. The former record, 15, was made by G. W. Moore. The Mexican made the high cluster in a match with Charles Peterson, red ball champion, which he won, 100 to 69.

the two leaders in the series which open this afternoon. However, the Braves have a slight edge in games played thus far.

BRAVES HAVE EDGE IN SERIES.

They have won fourteen and lost five with the Smoky City battlers this season, while the Giant score with the Cubs reads twelve wins as against seven losses.

The Giant enemy of today, though they are seven and a half games back of the Braves, still figure they have an outside chance to win and consequently will go after the Giants full tilt, in the hope that by cleaning up, they will be in position to come over to Boston next week and pull back the Stallings stars.

To the folks hereabouts who are still inclined to be nervous about Cards and Cubs, it might be well to mention that the pair of them are just half a game farther away from the lead than are the Red Sox i nthe American League.

Yet not even the most radical Sox rooter now has any hope of seeing the clan of the Carrigans finally win out.

BRAVES' CRACK STILL MISSING.

As we look at it, the race now is simply a battle between the Giants and the Braves, and as the end draws nearer the present vantage of the sensations looms bigger and bigger. But the race isn't over by any means.

The McGraws succeeded in cleaning up the Reds, heretofore very difficult game for them, and their pitchers showed more class than they have in any one week for a long, long time.

On the other hand, however, the oft-predicted "crack" of the Braves is now generally admitted to be out of the question. Looks like that series over in New York, a few days before the season closes, when Braves and Giants clash in five frays in four days, will find the two teams still scrapping it out.

Next week promises to have a lot to do with the ultimate result, however. Both fighting leaders have double-headers to contend with, among other things. The Braves play dual bills with the Reds, Wednesday and Thursday, and have a couple of games with Cubs, Saturday.

The Giants meet the fighting Cardinals in two battles Wednesday and have a double engagement with the Pirates Saturday.

FIGHT TO THE FINISH . . . . . .

The shadow of the end is beginning to close over the race. The Braves have but twenty-one more battles and the Giants one less. The gamest team will eventually win out. And a glance at the last ditch finishes of the Climbers in the past couple of months will give a splendid idea of just which of the pair has the most fight under adverse circumstances.

Today's wrangle promises to be another mightily fine pitcher's duel, for against Lefty Tyler the chances are that Fred Clarke will use his sensational southpaw, Cooper.

The two are the best portsiders in the Tener circuit. Cooper has been a very tough nut for the Braves to crack all year long, in fact the only one of the Pirate pitchers who could hold down the Boston batters.

Tyler has been equally effective against the Corsairs. With both going true to form, runs are likely to be mighty scarce. At all events, a tight game will be on tap for a big Saturday crowd.

Just to show how the Braves are figured in the race, the sure-thing boys, who "gamble" only when they know they can't possibly lose, are now offering $1,000 to $400 that Boston will win. While, of course, this will have no effect on the race, it serves as a mighty good barometer of the general feeling.

TY COBB'S STORY ON COMING WORLD'S SERIES

The battle for the baseball championship of the world begins in less than three weeks—October 9, to be exact. Some of the games will probably be played in Boston. Ty Cobb, the greatest of all baseball players, has written a forecast of the 1914 world's series exclusively for tomorrow's

BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

THEY couldn't hit Bill Doak. That's all there was to it. The Braves thought the umpire at the plate, Mr. Hart, gave them the worst of it.

The St. Louis Cardinals were equally sure the umpire discriminated against them.

THE fact of the matter is that if Mr. Hart's work was not up to the mark he distributed his misrulings with strict impartiality. He played no favorites. If the Braves got the worste of it, so did the Cards.

THE writer of this column is not prepared to say that Mr. Hart's work was what is popularly known as "rotten." After the game the writer found many who declared that Evers was safe at the plate when he tried to steal home in the sixth inning. But there were an equal number who thought Evers was out.

SO also in the case of Huggins in the eighth round when he attempted to score from second on Miller's single to left. A lot of people thought he was out and a lot more thought he was safe. The umpire ruled that the man was out in both cases. The plays were extremely close.

THERE was another close play at first in which the St. Louis runner appeared to be safe. Schmidt had to jump to get the Rabbit's throw, and while he was in the air the runner appeared to have crossed first. But Mr. Rigler, on the bases, said he was out.

The game was full of close plays. There was constant kicking on called balls and strikes.

BUT when all is said and done, the fact remains that the Braves did not win because they couldn't hit Bill Doak. And the Cards didn't win because they couldn't hit Bill James in the pinches. So it is a standoff all around, and in view of everything the game couldn't properly be anything else than a tie.

HANK GOWDY, the Duke of Squantum, caught a brilliant game behind the bat. He nipped every runner that tried to steal second, he fielded the short hits in front of the plate in fine style and his backing up at first in the third inning saved the Braves' bacon, perhaps.

THE Rabbit turned a play in the eleventh that was a peach. He speared Wilson's hot grounder with one hand over to the right of second base, and by a true throw to first nipped the runner.

Butcher Schmidt was also there with fine judgment and skill when he threw to the plate with the bases full on Magee's rap.

THE Giants gained half a game on the Braves as the result of yesterday's engagements on the diamond. But that's all right. The Braves now have 21 games to play. That tie yesterday remains a tie. It cannot be played off.

The Giants have 20 games to play. If the Braves win 10 and lose 11 of their remaining games, the Giants must win 13 and only lose 7 in order to beat out our boys.

THE Braves have a slight advantage in the next few days, as they are playing the Pirates while the Giants must tackle the Cubs.

The hardest part of the Brave work has been done, now that the "Wild Men from Borneo" have finished their series here. Pittsburgh, Chicago and Cincinnati should prove easier picking than the Cards.

THE 21 games the Braves have to play are as follows:

With Pittsburgh 3, with Chicago 4, with Cleveland 5, with Brooklyn 4, with New York 5.

New York's 20 games are as follows:

With Boston 5, with St. Louis 4, with Pittsburgh 5, with Chicago 3, with Philadelphia 3.

Looks like the Braves had the easier road to travel.

WHILE Manager Clarke of the Pirates intends to give his young players a chance to show their worth in the games to be played on the road, he will do no experimenting in New York and Boston. Just before leaving Pittsburgh with his team he said:

"Against the two Eastern clubs who are fighting for the pennant I will use the strongest club that I can put in the field, as the interests of two Western clubs who still have a chance must be protected. The Pirates damaged the chances of the Cardinals and Cubs, and will play their hardest against the Giants and Braves; but wherever and in whatever positions it is expedient I will use my young players.

"There have been pennant fights in the bygones where I have seen some unfair work of other managers. I have seen weakened clubs pitted against a contender and I made up my mind that if I ever got on the outside of a pennant fight I would play fairly and show no favorites with those who were in the fight.

"Of course, a manager's duty is first by his own club, and he has a perfect right to use green men late in the season for the purpose of development; but in such a race as the present one he should use his strongest club wherever the pennant fight figures."

"One thing that seems to have discouraged our boys is the attitude of the public, not only here in New York, but all over the circuit. We realize as well as anybody that the whole country is rooting for the Braves. It has a depressing influence."

THE New York players cannot understand why the baseball world is against them.

The answer is simple: The public is always with the under [illegible] that regains his feet and [illegible] the other dogs to a standst[illegible]

TEST OF TRADE IN SOX-NAPS CLASH TODAY

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 19.—It may be a "test of a trade" in the final game of the series between the Naps and Red Sox at Somers Park this afternoon. Manager Birmingham is planning to use Fred Coumbe, the southpaw whom he secured from Boston as part payment in the deal that made Vean Gregg a member of Carrigan's crew.

Carrigan, on the other hand, is figuring on sending the former Nap southpaw against his old teammates.

The attendance figures at the Cleveland games right now are almost nil. Fans are tiring of seeing the home hopes lose game after game, and it's only natural for the managers to try to frame up something to make the turnstiles click a little more rapidly in the closing days of the season. Therefore Birmingham and Carrigan are figuring on the "trade" on the firing line to help bring the money.

Cleveland players are of the opinion that if the season had another six weeks to run the Red Sox would make a strong bid to take the pennant from the Athletics.

Practically every member of the tailenders insists that Carrigan's crew has shown them more baseball this season than the Athletics. They also insist that the Boston pitching brigade is far superior to that owned by Connie Mack.

The Red Sox haven't abandoned all hope of beating the Mackmen to the wire, although the majority of them admit that they have only an outside chance at best.

New Mile Record for Frank Bogash, Jr.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 19.—Frank Bogash, Jr., won the free-for-all pace, pacing the second heat in the remarkable time of 1:59¼, with one exception the fastest heat ever paced in a race. There were two other good races on the closing card of the meeting, but all performances were eclipsed by the meteoric speed of the gelding from the Murphy stable.

One Round Davis Defeats Levinsky

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 19.—One Round Davis, the Buffalo heavyweight, outpointed Battling Levinsky in a ten-round bout before the Queensberry Club.

Davis dropped Levinsky in the first round and thereafter Levinsky was mostly on the retreat. While Levinsky showed flashes of cleverness and speed, Davis' hitting won the margin for him.

PIRATES HERE TO PUT SKIDS UNDER BRAVES

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Now for the Pirates. The Cards left town without being able to win a game from the Braves. Let us see if our boys can do as well with the Pittsburgh team.

Three games are on the schedule—today, Monday and Tuesday. The Pirates have no chance to win the pennant, and at this season of the year a club in the second division usually tries out a number of recruits on the last trip of the year. But Manager Clarke of the Pittsburghs says he will put his strongest team in the field against the Braves and Giants. This will be done in order to show that the Pirates are playing no favorites and to avoid possible scandal.

If Stallings keeps close to his schedule he will send George Tyler to the firing line this afternoon. If not, probably George Davis will get another chance to work. For Pittsburgh, either Cooper or Harmon is expected to do the pitching.

A victory today would be a fine thing for the Braves. If they lose they will not have very pleasant thoughts over Sunday.

Cambridge Club to Hold Big Road Race

St. Mary's Catholic Association is going to hold a ten-mile road race a week from today. The event has aroused a tremendous amount of interest among the long distant runners, as it will act as a tryout for the big Brockton Marathon, which will be held next month. Many of the stars who will compete in the grind from Boston to Brockton will be on hand at the Cambridge race.

Preparations for the contest are being made by Humphrey O'Leary, Jr., who is being assisted by a large number of energetic workers. The event is an annual affair and is usually held just before the gymnasium opens for the Fall term.

John Hale Has a Talk with Tom and Finds Out How He Was Mistaken in Constance

BY VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER LVI.

TOM MORTON was going to get well.

His friends and business associates, inquiring in person or by telephone at the hospital, received this information. Constance Medford, calling up, as had been her daily custom for a fortnight, heard the glad news with quickened breath and fast beating heart. Ralph Morton, learning the verdict from Tom's office clerk, whom he chanced to meet on the street, also felt his breath come fast, but his heart sank with a sickening dread, followed by the resolution to "wind up" affairs and get away as soon as possible. This decision prompted him to tell his mother a few hours later that he was arranging to go West with her even earlier than first planned.

"I want to settle in Los Angeles before Summer really comes," he explained, "and you will find the trip beautiful in June when the country is in its fresh verdure."

Once more his mother rejoiced in her son's unselfish thought of her welfare. She mused over it often during the ensuing days when Ralph worked with an energy whose existence she had never before suspected—boxing furniture, packing trunks, placing the house in an agent's hands to be sold or rented, closing up his office and making preparations for the proposed journey. So efficient was he that the neighbors hardly appreciated that they were planning to leave Homewood before the Morton's house was actually vacant and they themselves were gone. It all looked very strange, some people thought, while gossips associated it in a vague way with the rumor that Edith Hale had jilted Ralph Morton.

RALPH'S MOVE SETS THE GOSSIPS TALKING

"She certainly let us think she was engaged to him," Beatrice Craig insisted. "As I saw him kiss her I believe she did accept him and then threw him over for Ned Dayton. It looks to me now as if she had caught him."

John Hale learned of Tom Morton's convalescence at the same time that he received a message that the invalid would like to have a talk with him. The elderly man could not refuse the summons, but went reluctantly to the interview. He winced as he entered the shaded room and saw the stalwart form on the narrow bed, a bandage over the eyes concealing the injuries there. Only the broad forehead, firm mouth and lower jaw were visible, but the patient smiled as he grasped his visitor's hand.

"I have waited to send for you until the doctors told me that a serious conversation could not harm me," he explained. "My injuries are healing now."

"But your eyes," the caller questioned, "why are they bandaged still?"

The nurse hastened to reply. "He had a bad cut across the lower lids. Some foreign matter from the bed of the brook, or from the dust on the ride to the hospital, must have infected the wounds. At first it looked almost as if he might lose his sight, but the eyes are safe now and the inflammation that threatened to spread from the lids is nearly gone. Yet he must wear his bandages for a few days longer. Now I will leave him with you, as he wants to talk with you. Ring if you want me."

As soon as the two men were alone Tom turned eagerly to John Hale.

"You have been so kind to me always," he said, "that I want you to answer my questions frankly. And I will speak the truth to you."

Then he asked eagerly, first of all, about Constance. Dr. Sheffield had told him that it was she who had found him. How had she known that he was hurt? What was she doing out alone at that time of the night? Listening to the questions of this man who had just returned from the brink of the grave John Hale knew that he was not deceiving him, knew with a swift insight that he had always been the honorable gentleman that he had believed him to be before Ralph Morton had maligned him. So he himself replied directly, honestly, relating the story of Constance's behavior as far as he knew it, making no excuses for his own part in it, only giving the facts. The honesty of the sufferer drew from him a similar honesty.

JOHN HALE IS STILL GREATLY PUZZLED

"I could not understand the girl's action—and I do not understand it—since she had no message from you that you were coming. Unless"—struck by an illuminating idea—"she heard me telephone you."

"She may have done so," Tom murmured. Then he was silent. The other, watching him, saw the lips take on a moved, tender curve—the expression that a man might wear who appreciated what a good, pure woman had done to save him. As this thought came to the elderly man it was followed by the swift mental query: "Save him from what? Who or what could harm him? Who else knew that he was on the road to Homewood that night? Who besides Martha and Edith?"

And as startling came the recollection that Ralph was aware that the master of the house had summoned Tom that evening. For an instant he was glad that his companion's eyes were bandaged, for he felt the color leave his own face. At last he broke the silence with a question to which he tried to give a casual sound.

"Will you tell me what you remember of your accident?"

Tom spoke reluctantly. "Not very much," he said. "I was driving rapidly. I saw the light of an automobile at the roadside. I sounded my horn. I saw a figure leap forward, the hand raised in the air, I felt a flash as of fire across my eyes—and all went black."

"Did you recognize the figure?" asked the older man hoarsely.

"I am not sure," Tom replied. "I would rather not think of it. It is done now."

"There is one thing more you must tell me," insisted John Hale. "I promise not to use it. What did the figure hold in its upraised hand?"

"I did not see," replied Tom. "But I did not send for you to talk about myself, but to ask you about Miss Medford. Where is she?"

TOM INSISTS HE MUST RECOVER.

The nurse found her patient strangely excited when she returned to him after his caller's departure.

"I must get well," he told her feverishly. "Everything depends upon it."

"Oh, no," she soothed, her fingers on his pulse. "Not everything."

"Yes—everything!" he insisted. And as she did not want to excite him further she did not contradict him.

"You must try to keep calm and patient if you would be well soon," she warned him.

He started to speak impetuously, then thought better of it.

"I will try," he promised, meekly.

To Be Continued.

TEARS, THEIR USES AND ABUSES

By DOROTHY DIX

TEARS is what you do to folks when you ain't big and strong enough to fight 'em.

Also tears is what you do when you are terrible angry and dasen't say the things you are thinking because you're a perfect lady.

When ladies weep they make a noise that sounds like DAMN, Damn, damn, d-a-m-n.

When a man gets angry he can cuss and throw things around, but all that a lady can do is to burst into tears and slam the door behind her. It means the same thing, only when a man cusses he has to apologize and say he was sorry he lost his temper, but if a woman will just keep on crying the man will call her pet names and say he was a brute.

I know, because that is the way that my papa and my mamma do. When I grow up and get married I am going to be the champion long-distance weeper.

My teacher says that there is no power stronger than hydraulic pressure. I guess that is why so many husbands look as if they had been flattened out.

Tears are most profitable to a woman. It is the easiest way for her to get what she wants, because if you will just sit down and howl for a thing somebody will give it to you to make you shut up. I know, because I have tried it.

Also, when you are arguing a thing and get in a hole where you cannot think of anything more to say, you can win out by beginning to sniffle into your pocket handkerchief.

My papa says that women always take the water route out of trouble.

When I was a little thing I used to squawl a lot, and my papa said, "I am going to break this child of crying." But my mamma said, "Oh, no. To be a good, free, natural weeper is the most valuable talent that a woman can have, and one that will take her farthest; so do not blight your daughter's prospects in life."

Once I heard a lady say to my mamma: "Tears are a woman's best weapon."

"That is true," said my mamma, "but they are only dangerous when you are young. No woman should weep after she is forty years old. When you are young and slim when you weep, a man invites you to dry your eyes on the second button of his vest, and he pats you on the back and says: 'There, there, poor dear, don't cry.' When you are old and fat and begin to weep a man picks up his hat and starts for the door and tells you not to make a fool of yourself.'

"All men are afraid of tears," said the lady. "It's a mercy to us women that they are," said the lady. "Until her nose begins to get red," said my mamma.

There is not as much water in a tear as there is in the ocean, but my papa says that it has floated more things, and more men have been drowned in it.

Women are weak and helpless, but they are strong on weeping. Oh, how wonderful are the ways of Providence.

Quite Correct.

The traveler had spent the night at the station hotel, and in the morning, after a hurried breakfast, found himself with only five minutes in which to catch his train. He made a helter-skelter progress to the platform, and then suddenly remembered that he had left his dispatch case, containing valuables, on the dressing table in his bedroom. After a moment's hesitation he seized his baggage from the porter.

"Quick!" he cried. "Run up as fast as ever you can to number sixty-nine, and see if I have left a green morocco dispatch case on the right hand corner of the dressing table.

The youth departed like lightning, and the traveler, hanging out of the carriage window, watch in hand, timed the passing moments with augmenting anxiety. The train was on the move as the porter sprang along the platform, empty-handed.

"Yes, sir," he panted, "that's right, sir; you left it on the corner of the dressing table, sir!'

The Snow Bird.

"Here's a fellow goes in for bathing all Winter. Must be a nut, eh?"

"Yes, a beach nut."

Smart Afternoon Gowns

(From the September number of Harper's Bazar.)

PARIS still holds the world supremacy as a fashion centre. In the model at the left she shows her delicate and original touch and designs a smart frock for the afternoon tea or informal evening gathering. A black velvet jumper basque is finished with box plaited ruches of black satin and set above a full tunic of black and white lace, which in turn is finished with one of the plaited ruches. Beneath this is a narrow underskirt of heavy white satin embroidered in large motifs. The black and white lace fills in the round decolletage and forms the sleeves. There are deep frills caught in black velvet and falling over milady's hands and a high fan shaped frill of sheer batiste stands collar-wise above the wide plaited neckband of the black velvet.

The long, straight line, said to be a development of the Greek costumes used in the Parisian production of "Aphrodite," is displayed at the right to splendid advantage. It is here developed in cream charmeuse, although serge or broadcloth would be vastly better for the crisp Fall days we have in America instead of the warm French September. The long tunic corsage and overskirt are in one piece, and may be of heavy lace or braided cloth, as purse and inclination dictate. Sleeves and underskirt are of the plain material, and the long coat with flaring basque is of the cloth, heavily braided in white soutache. Here we have a suggestion of the redingote lines that will be so popular this Winter.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T MARRY HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of eighteen, and am in love with a boy one year older than I am. I have been keeping company with this fellow over two years, but never gave a thought to getting married. But now he asks me to get married next month. I realize that I do not think he can make a living for me, as he earns only $10 a week, but he says that I can work and help him. I do not feel as if I want to work for years to come.

M. P. A.

YOUR sweetheart is decidedly too young for marriage, and ten dollars a week is not enough on which to start married life. If you intend to have any children you ought to consider them and not to plunge into a marriage the responsibilities of which you are unable to meet.

DON'T DESPAIR

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Kindly advise me what to do. I'm a young girl of eighteen and considered good looking. I am kept very, very strict by my parents. We have a business and I am always in the store, even Sundays. I am not allowed to go for a walk. I am not allowed to have any men friends. I have complained to my parents, but they don't seem to care.

PERPLEXED.

YOU are very young, my dear girl, and all the possibilities of life are still before you. Your parents probably mean only to protect you from the silliness and affectation that are spoiling girls today. Be simple and sweet and modest, and some day happiness will come to you most unexpectedly. Prove to your parents that you are a sensible, trustworthy girl, and I am sure as soon as any desirable friends come your way they will do all in their power to foster the acquaintance.

TRY TO CURE HER SILLINESS.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen years of age and go out with a girl two years my junior. This girl, in an effort to gain my love, has been sending me mysterious letters which are supposed to be sent by a boy friend of mine who is jealous of me. I will quote a few lines from one of these letters. "Who is the beautiful, sweet, blue-eyed girl I see you walking with so often? How lucky you are, and unfortunate am I." and others words intending to make her more desirable than I really think she is. I have found that it positively was this girl who wrote these letters. Before I received these letters I thought I might learn to love her, but now I am puzzled and ask your advice in the matter.

PUZZLED.

THIS girl has been doing an absurd and—if she signed some one else's name—a dishonorable thing. Suppose you tell her that you have discovered what she has been doing and are sufficiently her friend to grieve over such action on her part. If you are a fine enough boy you may have a good influence over this girl and prevent her developing into a very emotional creature who will do all sorts of unworthy things to gain her ends.

ASK FOR AN EXPLANATION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of nineteen and in love with a girl two years younger than I am. We did not see each other for some time, and when we met we stopped to talk to each other.

Now whenever she passes we she looks me in the eyes and won't say a word to me. Should I wait until she starts to talk to me, or should I start in to talk to her?

H. A. G.

YOU may have given her some offence of which you are unconscious. Write to the girl and ask her if you have done anything to make her wish to discontinue your friendship.

MISCHIEF MAKERS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man, twenty-two years of age, and engaged to a young lady three years my junior. I love this girl with all my heart, and I know that she, too, loves me. But some of her girl friends are doing all in their power to get us apart, much to my misery. First they come and tell me things about her which I know are not true (even if they were I wouldn't care, as I truly love her); and, when they see that I don't listen to what they have to say, then they go back and tell her untrue things about me. Sometimes my friend believes what they tell her about me, which makes me feel very badly. Please let me know if you think she loves me truly when she believes what these girls tell her. I know I could never live without this girl.

ED. B.

YOU, as a man, have the stronger nature, in regard to gossip. It is too bad that these mischief-makers can influence your fiancee; but they probably play on her feelings cleverly. I am sure, however, that love as sincere as yours means much to her. Teach her how false these gossiping friends are, and urge her to give them up.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WHAT became of that nice young man that worked on the third chair yesterday?" asked the Manicure Lady.

"The nice young man got fired," said the Head Barber. "He was one of them languid workers, and when he shaved a man he acted as if he was doing the man a favor. I watched his speed all day, and when them shades of night was falling, as the poets say, I tied a can to him."

"You might have given him more of a trial," said the Manicure Lady. "He looked so neat and handsome in his white coat."

"He'll look just as neat and handsome driving a team," said the Head Barber. "That kind of a guy never needs to get his clothes pressed very often, no matter what kind of a job he has. I have saw quite a few like him, and they ain't no good. He said he wasn't much in love with the job anyway, and I told him that made it nice all around. It beats all the number of men there are in this country who are looking for a job and afraid they will find one."

"I guess that is so," said the Manicure Lady. "Brother Wilfred is a good deal that way himself. You know that job I was telling you about, that job he had writing soap ads. Well, he passed that up after working three weeks just because the owner of the concern took a notion that he didn't like one of the verses Wilfred wrote. It was only a little eight-line jingle, and he could have wrote another in ten minutes, but he felt as bad about getting it turned down as a playwright would feel when he found he couldn't get his play on the stage. He told the boss that he wasn't used to having his poems criticized and turned down like that, which was about as far from the truth as anything Mister Ananias ever said. Goodness knows he has had his poems criticised and returned as often as any poet that ever wrote a line. Father told him when he came home with his tale of woe that he was a big baby, and he hinted that work and Wilfred wouldn't never be no great pals."

"I always liked to work, and I have worked ever since I can remember," said the Head Barber. "I never got fired but once, and that wasn't because I didn't work hard. I was a little bit shaky from a session I had the night before, and I cut off part of a gent's ear. The gent was one of them mean old warts that couldn't take it the way it was meant and he said that if the boss didn't fire me he would sue the place, so out I sailed. I like work now, as much as I ever did, and I always will like it till I take the last count."

"Well, I can't go that strong," said the Manicure Lady. "Of course, I realize that a person ought to do something to be useful as one is going through life, but I ain't no holy terror for pitching in and making things fly. I ain't as lazy as Wilfred, though. I work kind of cheerful and fairly patient, I think. He is the limit for dodging the heavy going. He is all the time talking about the dignity of labor and wrote a poem once called 'Triumphant Toil,' but he ain't got no callouses on his hands. He's about like the young fellow that was looking for a job and asked how much pay he would get. 'As much as you are worth,' says the boss. 'I won't work that cheap,' says the young man."

"Yes," said the Head Barber, "and the woods is full of young men just like him."

Echoes Made to Order

Are you aware that it is possible to make echoes? It is indeed easier to make than to destroy them.

In the past men built their great temples and cathedrals with no thought of acoustics. Hence, when the preacher preached, echoes rolled freely amid the groinings of the roof, down the rows of sculptured columns and round and round the nave.

With wires strung here and with tapestries spread there, many of the echoes of the old-world buildings have been obliterated. There are echo experts—builders acquainted with the science of acoustics, whose specialty is echoes' destruction. Sometimes their tasks are hard.

Today an architect takes thought of the echo. His building is constructed so as to exclude this intruder. And, knowing how to exclude it, he knows how to welcome it also.

Architects are frequently called upon in landscape work to put up Summer houses and arrange rocks around them so as to create an echo there. And this they can satisfactorily do.

First Fiction Known

Are you aware that the "Tale of Two Brothers," written 3,200 years ago by the Theban scribe Ennana, librarian of the palace to King Merenptah, the supposed Pharaoh of the Exodus, is the oldest work of fiction extant?

The tale was written apparently for the entertainment of the Crown Prince, who subsequently reigned as Seti II. His name appears in two places on the manuscript—probably the only surviving autograph signatures of an Egyptian king.

This piece of antique fiction, written on nineteen sheets of papyrus in a bold hieratic hand, was purchased in Italy by Mme. d'Orbiney, who sold it in 1857 to the authorities of the British Museum, where it is now known as the d'Orbiney papyrus.

The New Home Treatment for Ugly, Hairy Growths

(Boudoir Secrets)

Here is a simple, yet very effective method for removing hair or fuzz from the face, neck or arms. Cover the objectionable hairs with a paste made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. Leave this on for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. No pain or inconvenience attends this treatment, but results will be certain if you be sure to get real delatone.—ADVERTISEMENT.

The Right and Wrong Time to "Spoon"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE hungry-hearted women who haven't heard "I love you" since their wedding days will wonder after reading the following letter how any girl so young can be trapped:

"I am twenty-one and have been keeping company with a young man four years my senior and expect to marry him soon. The only fault I find with him is that when we are together he is always telling me how much he loves me, and will not talk of anything else, which is very provoking at times. Now what I want to know is this. How can I break him of the habit?"

Let the hungry-hearted wives who long to hear that which this congealed young person dislikes answer her question, "How can I break him of the habit?"

JUST THE OPPOSITE.

"Marry him!" they cry. "Husbands do not declare their love, and, alas, some do not feel any."

"I am sixteen," writes another girl, "and in love with a young man of twenty, with whom I have been keeping company a year and a half. We are engaged, and he is very true to me and I am to him. My girl friends say we are old-fashioned, because we do not spoon. I do not approve of spooning, and neither does my sweetheart—at least, he never says anything about it."

An accidental kiss, a caress, some outward token of an overflowing heart; and yet these two young people who are engaged to be married, never indulge, and do not approve!

She says it is because she is old-fashioned. It must be a fashion so old that poets, novelists and historians did not then exist, for the most ancient hieroglyphics tell a story of love and love-making.

Proposals of marriage are often preceded by spooning; ofttimes unfortunately, for the reason that the proposal never follows, but that there should be a proposal and an acceptance, and no manifestation of love is incredible. It is as unnatural as if a man said to a woman, "Do you love me?" and she replied, "I do," and he changed the conversation to talk of the income tax or the European war.

These two little icicles hanging side by side, and showing no sign of ever melting, may be happy. No doubt they will be, but they will miss more happiness than they are capable of knowing.

A NATURAL QUESTION

How much more natural this sounds: "Kindly let me know if it is improper to kiss a girl while walking in the park, or if it is wrong to hold her around the waist, as we have very little opportunity for being alone at her house?"

Wrong? Never! All outdoor was made to make love in, when opportunity missed at home, and a love story is just as sweet when told sitting on a water plug at a street crossing as when told in a conservatory to the strains of an orchestra. It is the story that makes the environment; never the environment that makes the story.

There will be scoffing by all who behold such a sight, but down at the bottom of every heart there will be a regret for a day that is past, or a secret hope for a day to come.

A young woman who sleeps, cooks and eats in one room wants to know if it is improper to have a gentleman call on her.

In these make-shift days when a general utility room can be converted on a moment's notice into a pretty sitting room by the closing of a cupboard and kitchenette doors and the folding away of a bed, it is proper for a girl to receive her gentleman friend in such a room. If it were not, where could she receive him? On a park bench in Summer, you say? But from October till May is a long time to deny one's self the sight of a friendly face.

There is no impropriety in receiving a gentleman friend under such circumstances if the girl sees that the bounds of propriety are never overstepped. It is her actions that make a thing right or wrong; not the furniture.

Tracing Family Likenesses

WHAT father or mother has not enjoyed tracing family likenesses in their children? Baby has its mother's eyes and father's nose, uncle's chin and auntie's ears, grandma's mouth and grandpa's hair, the temper, if bad, of course resembling that of some more distant ancestor.

It is a fascinating domestic topic, this tracing of family likenesses; but it would probably puzzle ninety-nine parents out of a hundred, after they had decided whom baby most resembled, to say how such hereditary likeness came about.

As a matter of fact, there are certain laws which govern facial resemblances and qualities in children. For instance, it has been proved that if a person of brown-eyed stock married a person with blue eyes all the children would have brown eyes; but if one of those children, who might be called a hybrid brown-eyed person, married a blue-eyed or hybrid brown like himself, the result of such a union would be both brown and blue-eyed children. Two pure blue-eyed parents, however, only have blue-eyed children, whatever their ancestry might have been.

Again, referring to the eyes, it is a fact that a color-blind man married to a normal woman only has normal children, both boys and girls. The boys never hand on the affliction, but the girls, even when married to a normal man, have color-blind sons. The affliction thus appears in males, but it is transmitted by females.

These and other discoveries are the result of a careful study of heredity made by Dr. Leonard Doncaster and other scientists. It is also pointed out, for instance, that all children of musical parents are also musical, but there is also great comfort for the unmusical.

EXPECT STOCKS WILL RISE AT THE REOPENING

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

One of the most prominent of New York stock operators expects prices will rise when markets reopen. He expects Eastern roads will be permited to raise freight rates and that this stimulus to industry and buying by farmers will make present prices of securities look ridiculously cheap. However, bankers are taking no steps towards having exchanges resume business, and it is thought resumption rests with them. There is more cheerfulness in financial districts and international experts predict that the foreign exchange market will be normal, or near to normal, within a few weeks.

It is begun to be seen by trade boomers that it will be necessary to provide South American countries with the credit they so much need before the market for American goods can be greatly extended in the southeren half of this hemisphere. The Department of Commerce, it is announced, will place commercial attaches at Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Ayres, Santiago and Lima. United States government commercial agents are already at work in those fields.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.

The New York bank statement is as follows: Cash deficit $38,384,100, increase $3,319,100; loans increase $67,288,000, specie decrease $289,000; legal tenders increase $11,663,000. Net deposits increase $62,942,000; circulation increase $5,200,000. Actual statement: Loans increase $67,288,000; specie decrease $289,0000; legal tenders increase $11,663,000; net deposits increase $63,942,1,000; reserve increase $11,374,000.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Chicago and Northwestern road earned 2 per cent. less on common stock in the last fiscal year than in the previous one.

Pittsburgh mills have received orders from France and Russia calling for the shipment of 6,000,000 horse shoes next week. This is war business.

There is little coper being sold at present and what business exists is reported to be on the basis of 12½ cents a pound.

It is understood that the world's gold production for 1914 will be about $25,000,000 less than for 1913, when it totalled $475,000,000.

PAYS $500,000 TO BOOM "BUY A BALE" IDEA

The greatest single sale so far achieved by the "Buy-a-Bale" movement of the Hearst newspapers, and the greatest and most inspiring sale yet made, was the purchase of 10,000 bales of cotton by the Montgomery Ward Company of Chicago, perhaps the largest and most famous mail order house in the world.

Here is the letter that attests the facts:

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 17.—J. W. Thorne, a member of the firm of Montgomery Ward & Co., makes the following statement:

"Our action with regard to the cotton proposition is being taken as a direct result of the 'Buy-a-bale' movement which was started by Mr. Hearst.

"We believe that this movement is a most commendable and excellent one in that it is going to place a part of the cotton crop in the hands of people who can afford to hold it until more normal conditions are restored; and it is going to place the money in the hands of people who need it very badly.

"We contemplate purchasing in the neighborhood of 10,000 bales, and are now making arrangements to do this. We will, of course, take this cotton from our customers in the Southern territory, and it is only natural that we favor them."

This heads the Hearst list with the inspiring line:

Montgomery Ward & Co., 10,000 bales	$500,000
Nathan Straus, the publicist, financier and philanthropist, 10 bales
Charles Otis, engineer, 5 bales	250
Judge Elbert H. Gary, 1 bale	50
James B. Reagan, of the Knickerbocker, 1 bale	50
B. C. Forbes, Business Editor the American, 1 bale	50
Frank Spoerr, 1 bale	50

"Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton"—A National Movement

The Spirit of Solidarity in the Nation Magnificently Expressed in the Response to an Appeal for the Cotton Growers. A Typically Generous Letter from Nathan Straus

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

The movement already known throughout the country as the "Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton" movement demonstrates powerfully the brotherly feeling that controls this nation.

The farmers of the South have contributed to the wealth of the nation, through patient labor, a crop exceeding in value all others.

Into this crop they have put not only their energy and their time, but all available capital.

But because of the war, which makes idle a hundred million spindles in England and on the Continent, the great cotton crop lies stagnant and disaster threatens the men of the South, whose work and whose prosperity are so essential to the prosperity of this nation and of the whole world.

The war has temporarily caused a cessation of cotton spinning and cotton buying.

Everybody knows that the war will soon end, that the value of the cotton is not diminished, that it will be more than ever needed after the war.

But, meanwhile, the whole South suffers, this nation suffers, our national finances and the balance of trade are disturbed because of the distressing effect of war upon the cotton growers.

The problem is to obtain for them MONEY NOW for the cotton that is to be used hereafter.

William Randolph Hearst, through his newspapers, has started an appeal to the country to "Buy a bale of cotton." If each man able to do so will buy one or more bales, pay the money, help the South to turn its great crop into cash, not the South alone, but the whole nation, will benefit.

To Mr. Hearst's appeal the response has been prompt and worthy. Typical of the spirit with which the appeal has been made is the letter received from Nathan Straus, of New York City, which we publish here.

Mr. Straus is from Georgia, the great cotton State, and his sympathies are with Georgia. His great knowledge of business makes him realize that the interest and the troubles of the cotton growers are the interest and the troubles of the whole nation.

Mr. Straus has in his lifetime distributed many tens of millions of yards of cotton goods. His response to Mr. Hearst's appeal to typical.

"Mamaroneck, N. Y.,
Sept. 14, 1914.

"Hon. William Randolph Hearst:

"My dear Mr. Hearst—Your editorial on 'Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton' which I read in yesterday's morning American strangely appeals to me. I congratulate you on this splendid idea, and I sincerely hope that it will meet with the ready response which the cause deserves.

"I herewith enclose you check of $500 for ten bales. Kindly give the order to have them warehoused for me in Atlanta. As a former Georgian, I am particularly interested in all that concerns the South.

"Very cordially yours,
"NATHAN STRAUS."

It is to be hoped that this movement of national friendship and solidarity will continue and grow.

No great branch of national effort should be crippled because of a miserable war for which we are not responsible.

This nation has the power and the money and the intelligence to say to the countries of Europe: "You may cripple each other, but you shall not cripple us or any great body of Americans. Your wars shall not destroy the fortunes of the cotton growers."

The "Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton" movement is a step in the direction of closer union, closer friendship and of closer sense of responsibility among the workers of this nation.

Join the movement, buy your bale of cotton, or your ten bales if you can afford it, and help to keep the effects of brutal war from hurting the good workers of America.

At the AMERICAN office, at No. 5 Winthrop Square, orders will be taken to purchase cotton through the Atlanta Cotton Committee and through the Atlanta Daily Georgian, the Southern newspaper of the Hearst system.

The official warehouses in Atlanta and elsewhere in the South will store every bale of cotton bought for 25 cents a month and send the purchaser a warehouse receipt. If he should hold it for a year the cost would be only $3, and the least likely profit is $10.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Boston is twenty-four hours nearer Europe than New York? When the Cleveland and Cincinnati sailed from Boston and New York at the same time, the Boston boat arrived twenty-four hours ahead of her sister ship.

Superintendent Dyer Is Both Patriotic and Wise

War Brutality SHOULD Be Kept Out of the Schools and Away From the Children

It has been suggested that a part of the teaching in the schools should consist of war maps, movements of troops, information as to the butchery going on in Europe.

Thanks to Superintendent Dyer, there will be no such ill-considered action in Boston.

Furthermore, the superintendent has set apart October 2 for peace exercises in the schools.

"We cannot say enough of peace," he says, "and it is wise for us to use some special occasion before the schools to call attention to the President's proclamation."

Superintendent Dyer is both patriotic and wise. School superintendents everywhere would do well to follow his example.

This newspaper hopes that no teacher's time anywhere and no child's time will be wasted with the details of war brutality.

Teachers and children have better use for their time.

To suggest that war maps be used in the schools daily and teachers compelled to concentrate the minds of the children upon brutal things is like suggesting the use in schools of diagrams of slaughter houses.

If anything is said about the war, it should be a few brief words by the teacher expressing the regret of the nation, the sympathy of our people with the mothers and the children in other lands, emphasizing the horror of war and deploring the fact that nations do on a gigantic scale what the men are not permitted to do.

He Wanted to Know Why, and He Found Out

Two eminently respectable residents of Boston were seated on a seaside piazza last Sunday morning.

One had a Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

"Why do you read the AMERICAN?" asked his neighbor. He seemed by his tone to imply that it was not desirable to read the AMERICAN.

"Well, I'll tell you," promptly replied the eminently respectable Bostonian with the paper in his hand. "I consider the Boston Sunday AMERICAN the greatest paper printed.

"It is always working for you and me. It marked my gas bill down to the 80-cent rate a few years ago, for one thing.

"I consider it has a greater field as an educator of the people than any other publication.

"I find that it holds my interest longer than any other paper, which leads me to conclude that the Sunday AMERICAN prints just the things I want to know.

"Furthermore, anyone who doesn't read the AMERICAN is bound to be a dead one. He can't keep up to date."

The conversation quickly shifted to the war situation.

Well, we can't please EVERYBODY, but we are glad to know the sentiments of the eminently respectable Bostonian.

We hope he will like our tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

For his information and for the information of the 400,000 or more others who will buy it we mention the following features which will appear in tomorrow's edition:

The Great Secret of Cleopatra's Loves.

Why famous Egyptian Queen married Caesar and later Mark Antony revealed by eminent Boston Egyptologist, just back from excavation tour.

What Will Happen to the Holy City If Turks Engage in War.

How the wresting of Jerusalem's sacred spots from the hands of the Turks may be one of the results of the present war in Europe.

How Sea Wars Are Fought Beneath The Waves and in the Clouds.

Why this present European conflict may send all battleships to the scrap heap and leave only monstrous sharks of steel and man-made vultures of air to fight for the ocean's mastery.

How Can I Make That Stingy Prince Divorce Me?

Unusual and still unsuccessful efforts of an American beauty to rid herself of a royal, but parsimonious Egyptian husband.

Why Toothache Makes You Feel Sick All Over.

Science discovers that an infection of the mouth like that which causes toothache or of the nose, ear and throat is quite capable of producing serious effects far beyond the limited area where it has its centre.

Why There Is No Such Thing as "Air Sickness."

Earle L. Ovington, the famous aviator, denies the scientific theories that flying to great heights makes breathing hard and is liable to paralyze a man's brain.

ALL FOR THE LADIES!

A page for the home, including a timely lesson in etiquette by Mrs. Frank Learned.

A lesson in practical hygiene for the hair and skin by Dr. William S. Gotthell.

Six delicious prune recipes by May Irwin.

Some of Cavalieri's favorite beauty recipes.

An assortment of attractive patterns for the home dressmaker.

Fall fashions for Americans by Lady Duff Gordon, the famous Lucille of London. She presents some charming models of evening dresses, tea and walking gowns, coats, wraps and hats for early Autumn wear.

And these are only a few of the great features in tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN, monarch of all New England Sunday newspapers; first in circulation, first in big exclusive features.
